Member Communications and SAFed News Page

News Page Up and Running on SAFed Website

Vauxhall, London, 11th August 2021

The pandemic is still around, however, it is time to close our specific area of the website where updates and information relating to our industry during the pandemic were listed. It will be now used to host the SAFed news bulletins and other information that is freely shared with our members.

SAFed wish to improve its methods of general communications with members. Historically SAFed have used email to provide member communications, however, this requires careful management of distribution lists and there is the risk that some individuals receive multiples of the same email, whilst on occasion others may receive none. The news area of the website will improve accessibility for all and future reference back to freely shared items.

Please keep an eye on the news page of the website as more general information will start to be presented here from myself, Joe and Jane.
